

Lee offers special help to former students of ITT Tech

Baytown — Lee College is stepping up to help students who used to go to ITT Technical Institute, which recently closed its schools in Houston and across the country.

If you were going to ITT Tech and want to keep working on your college degree, Lee College has people ready to help. Advisors and counselors can guide you on how to transfer to Lee College, get financial aid, sign up for classes, and choose a new program.

Some of the programs you can study include Computer-Aided Drafting and Design, Electrical Technology, Paralegal Studies, Accounting Technology, and Computer and Network Maintenance.

To learn more, including how to apply and whom to contact, visit the Lee College website.